James Greensheilds, Clerk, Appellant. The Magistrates of Edinburgh, Respondes.

The Respondents Case.

HAT the Appellant as he acknowledges in his Petition, was in the Year 1694. (after the Abolition of Prelacy in Scotland) ordain'd a Presbyter by the late exauctorat Bishop of Ross in Scotland, and having been some Years in Ireland, he return'd again to Edinburgh, in the Year 1709. and without any lawful Warrant, fet up a Meeting-house there, for Preaching and Publick Worship, contrary to the Method and Usage of the Church of Scotland; which Meeting-house being fet up in an insulting and offensive Manner, just opposite to the great Church of Edinburgh, where four Parishes meet for Publick Worship; the Presbytry of Edinburgh summon'd the Appellant to appear before them, to give an Account of himself, and of his presuming without Authority, to exercise the Office of the holy Ministry publickly on the Lord's Day; upon which Summons, the Appellant appear'd before them, and produc'd the Certificate of his Ordination, by the faid exauctorat Bishop of Ross, with some Testimonials from Ireland; but being interrogated by the Presbytry, By what Authority he exercised the Ministry within their Bounds, without being authorised for that End, according to Law? he declined the Authority both of the Presbytry and of the National Church, and subscribed the same coram, and insisted that the Church had no Jurisdiction over him as to Spiritual Concerns: and being again question'd, adher'd to his Declinator, whereupon the Presbytry did prohibit the Appellant to exercise any part of his Ministry within their Bounds, and recommended it to the Magistrates of Edinburgh, to render the Sentence effectual, according to Law.

That the Sentence of the Presbytry being so recommended to the Magistrates of Edinburgh, to render effectual, and a Petition sign'd by many hundred Hands of the most considerable of the Neighbourhood, being presented to the Lord Provost and other Magistrates of Edinburgh, to desire the Magistrates to that Effect, they cited the Appellant to appear before them, and heappearing, they requir'd him to obey the Act of the Presbytry; which he refusing, they again prohibite him to exercise any part of his Ministry within Edinburgh, and give him Notice, that upon his first Transgression they would imprison him according to Law. But the Appellant, notwithstanding the Magistrates Prohibition, preach'd and perform'd Divine Service the Lord's Day sollowing; whereupon the Magistrates committed him to the Prison of the Tolbooth, there to remain until he should find Sureties to obey the Sentence, or remove out of their Bounds.

The Appellant being thus imprisoned, gives in a Bill of Suspension to the Lords of Session, craving the Magistrates Decree to be suspended, and himself set at Liberty; which Bill being heard by the Lords, with the Answers made thereto, they resused it, and the Appellant giving in a second Bill to the Effect aforesaid, the Lords of Session, after a new and full Hearing, again resused the Desire thereof; whereupon the Appellant thought sit by his Proctor, to protest against the Lords of Session, and their said Deliverance, and to appeal to the Queen's Majesty, and the Honourable House of Lords, for Justice and Redress.

And the Appellant having by his Complaint to the House of Lords exhibited the said Appeal, and the Lords having received the same, but withal declared by their Order, that the Prosecutors shall be at Liberty, upon the Hearing of this Cause, to argue in the first Place, whether the said Appeal be regularly and properly laid before them or not. The Respondents do humbly conceive, That there was no Place for this Appeal; and, That the said Appeal is neither regularly nor properly made before the Lord's House, for the Reasons following, viz.

First, There is no Place for this Appeal from the Sentence of the Presbytry of Edinburgh, because the Presbytry is only a subordinate Ecclesiastick Judicatory, from which, Appeals in course lie to the superiour Judicatories of the Provincial Synod, and General Assembly; and if the Appellant thought himself grieved by the Sentence of the Presbytry, and omitted this known and proper Remedy, he cannot in Law, or good Order, appeal from the Presbytry to the Honourable House of Lords, who in all appealable Cases are known to be only Judges in the last Resort.

Secondly, If this Appeal be from the Sentence of the Presbytry to the House of Lords, there is no proper Desenders or Contradictors summoned or called, it being undoubted in Law that the Presbytry's Sentence cannot be reviewed, unless they themselves were called to answer for it, and that the Respondents are not the Persons to make Answer in the Case.

Thirdly, Altho' the Appellant pretends only to appeal from the Decree of the Lords of Sellion, and the Sentence of the Magiltrates, it's evident, that he directly Libels the Sentence of the Presbytry, as groundless and illegal, and therefore to be reviewed; which upon the matter, is an Appeal from the Presbytry against it. But further, Seeing it is manifest that the Sentence of the Magistrates was purely Executive; and that they were only concerned to make the Sentence of the Presbytry effectual, as they were obliged to do by Law, particularly by the Act of Parliament, 1693, for fettling the Quiet and Peace of the Church, whereby it is expresly enacted, that all Magistrates, Judges, and Officers of Justice, give all due Assistance, for making the Censures of the Church and Judicatories thereof to be obeyed) without inquiring into the Reasons of that Sentence, which was wholly alterius fori, and not liable to their Cognition: Therefore the Magistrates cannot be questioned for what they did in Obedience to the Law, unless they had exceeded their Authority in the Execution, which they did not, nor is it pretended by the Appellant.

Fourthly, But if the Magistrates had exceeded in the Execution, the Appellant had the obvious Remedy which he laid hold on, viz. To complain to the Lords of Session, by a Bill of Suspension. But the Lords of Session did twice resuse his Bill, as there was no reason for granting it. It's certain in Law no Appeal can be made from the Execution of any Sentence, unless the Appeal be first made against the Sentence it self; which no doubt is what the Appellant principally intends. But since the Sentence,

Sentence, as above, is the Sentence of an Beclesiastick Court, in a Matter only under the Cognition of the Church, and to be remedied (if amiss) by it's superior Judicatories, it's hoped, their Lordships will find the Appeal was unlawfully made; for it's supposed, that even in the Church of England, there are Writs issued out in Course, for executing their Ecclesiastick Sentences, as the Writ de Excommunicato Copiendo, tho' a Civil Writ, yet being a Writ of Execution of an Ecclesiastick Sentence, unless the Sentence be first reviewed by an Ecclesiastick Judicatory, there lies no Appeal against the Writ, as being purely Executive.

Fifthly, Because before the late happy UNION of the two Nations, it was never known that any Appeal from the Ecclesiastick Judicatory of the Church, lay properly or regularly to the Parliament of Scotland;

nor can any President be produced of such Appeals brought.

That the Laws the Respondents humbly rely upon for full Justification of both the Presbytry's and their own Proceedings in this Case against the Appellant, and which are all unalterably confirmed by the late happy UNION, are the Acts following, viz.

I. The Third Act of King William and Queen Mary, 1689, Entituled, An Act, abolishing Prelacy.

II. The Fifth Act of the same Parliament, 1690, Entituled, An Act, ratifying the Confession of Faith, and setling Presbyterian Church Government.

III. The Twenty third Act of the same Parliament, Entituled, An Act for settling the Peace and Quiet of the Church.

IV. The Sixth Act of the Fourth Session of King William and Queen Mary's First Parliament, Entituled, An Act for taking the Oath of Allegiance and Assurance.

And also by a Proclamation of the 21st of March, 1706. Entituled, An Ast and Proclamation anent Intruders into Churches, (amongst other things) "The Queen and the Lords of Her Majesties Privy-Council did thereby prohibit and discharge all Persons who have no Authority from within the Church of Scotland, but pretend to a Warrant or Licence from the late exauctorat Bishops, since they were exauctorat, to exercise any part of the Ministerial Function, within this Church, or any Kirk or Paroch thereof, upon Pain of being seized and secured by the Magistrates of the Bounds, in order to their Tryal, pursuant to the Act of Parliament of 1693. and the Magistrates are thereby required to seize and secure such Persons, and punish them according to Law.

In Consideration of all which, the Respondents humbly hope, That their Lordships will be of the Opinion, That the Presbytry, Magistrates, and Lords of the Session, have all acted according to Law; and that the Appellant's Petition and Appeal shall be dismised.

Peter King.

Sensones, as above in the Seathles of an Eagloffielt Court, in a Mageter only up for the Counties of the Church, and to business and the in-Lettlin spiceton in the paper of the people of the London willing the appeal was interestally made; the it's supposed, while even in one Charges of the lower, electronic of the Mach out in County, the execution their Manufactures are the Writer's Examination of the line of the state of the sta Commenced College Coll were the transfer of the part to the part were the part of the par ethic Challes, At proposition of realistly as the Verter diana at Seating interest dates a design of the borne to be and the sty to a rice to a and Lords of the Seffion, against the Appeal and Complaint of Mr. James Greensbeilds, Clerk. the folding the state of the flowers, I all the state of Alt 108 1 Willy ide Present Contract of the Charles The Date of the Country of the Count Control of the second of the s with Maintain a long to the tracks and a masser place to the Cagnelli parto figinacio, e la figinacio Ships bill Longo and a second large verology, we also on a gray highly look to proceed, or or a few and the constitutions of the constitution of the c cell current of and it and it is the second of the contract of the second the contract of the second of the contract of the second of the seco The particular of the particul or due hand gap as a sure of the last, or resident a first and the first way athic committee of the to ansonalized to the host of miles her way a prompter read of all and one of the College of high original to the property begins a congress with the college, and the West 102 12 17 17 17 18 18 18 18 18 18

take Calfiberation of all the August and the account to the alless Landing to the following the state of the st have been a straining or have a fix you a property to be to be a being will the appealant's desiring and appeal for the property of the second